Democrats and republicans joined in an ovation to former Speaker Cannon when he spoke in the house today in support of the army appropriation bill and concluded with the declaration that he had been given a leave of absence for which he did not ask. He was going home to live among the people who had honored him by sending him to congress for forty years.

FRENCH MINISTERS RESIGN POSITIONS

Action Taken at Meeting of Cabinet Today as a Result of Poincare's Election.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Paris, Jan. 18.—The French cabinet met today at the call of the Elysee under the chairmanship of President Fallieres and all ministers formally offered their resignations as the result of the election yesterday of Premier Raymond Poincare as chief executive. President Fallieres requested all members of the government to retain their portfolios until their successor had been chosen.

Premier Poincare took his coffee at an early hour this morning and then went for a brisk walk on the Avenue des Champs Elysees at a time when few persons were about. Afterwards Mr. Poincare proceeded to the foreign office on the Quai d'Orsay where he with two secretaries proceeded to clear up the arrears in the national business affairs.

The news of Poincare's election even by those of monarchistic and clerical sentiments was commented on with favor and with an unanimity unprecedented in French politics. It is in fact difficult to find anywhere a dissenting word.

President Fallieres today invited Aristide Briand, the minister of justice, to form a cabinet in succession to the retiring Poincare ministry.

BEGGING LETTERS GO TO CLEARING HOUSE

Establishment of Such an Institution Is Proposed by Rockefeller Foundation.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Jan. 18.—A "Clearing House" for begging letters sent to philanthropists will be one of the adjuncts of the one hundred million dollar Rockefeller foundation for which Congress will be asked to grant according to Jerome B. Greene, former secretary of Harvard university and now an advisor of the Standard Oil magazine. Mr. Greene is here seeking to have congress at this session incorporate the organization which John D. Rockefeller alone receives an average of five hundred begging letters every day," said Mr. Greene. They ask for financial aid in sums ranging from $1 to amounts in several figures. Under present conditions, it is utterly impossible for Mr. Rockefeller even with the aid of a large staff of persons, to give attention to this volume of correspondence.

RELEASE PHYSICIANS FROM THEIR PROMISE

British Practitioners Agree to Give Services Under Insurance Act Which They Opposed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Jan. 18.—The members of the British Medical Association today decided by a vote of 115 to 35 to release physicians from the pledge they had given not to serve under the national insurance act which provides a compulsory allowance and medical attendance to the working classes during sickness. The opposition of the doctors to the scheme of insurance was based on the amount to be paid them for their services which they declared was too small. It was, however, suspected that politics had much to do with the doctors' resistance especially in London. The minority at today's meeting was composed entirely of London practitioners and the campaign against the act continues in the metropolis.

JOHN SCHRANK KEPT A CLOSE PRISONER

Assault of Roosevelt Not Subjected to Public Gaze at Oshkosh Hospital.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Oshkosh, Wis., Jan. 18.—That John Schrank, who attempted the assassination of Theodore Roosevelt, has passed into oblivion entirely is shown from the fact that no one is allowed to see him or talk with him at the Northern Hospital for the insane simply as a matter of curiosity or the purpose of notoriety. Supt. Sherman of the hospital refuses to allow Schrank to be an object of public gaze. He performs the various duties devolving upon him in the criminal ward faithfully and well, but the outside world knows nothing of him.

UNIONISTS DIVIDED ON TARIFF REFORM PLANK OF PLATFORM

Bonar Law Stirs Up a Hornet's Nest in Attempt to Smooth Over Impression Made by Landsdowne.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] London, Eng., Jan. 18.—The unionist party again finds itself at sixes and sevens over the main plank in its platform—tariff reform—or what would be known in America as tariff for revenue.

When Lord Lansdowne, who is slated for position of premier when the unionist returned to power, threw overboard the policy enunciated by Arthur Balfour, when leader of the party, of submitting the question to a referendum of the people before inaugurating a tariff and declared openly for a custom tariff on wheat, there was an outcry from Lancashire and other manufacturing districts which gave the unionist leadership matter for thought.

A meeting of the unionist council was hurriedly called and it was decided that Bonar Law should in a speech at Ashton-Under-Lyne, make an effort to smooth over the trouble by declaring that the unionists would not adopt "food taxes," or in other words a tariff on food stuffs until the colonies had been consulted, and only then if the colonies asked that an import tax should be imposed on "foreign products so that their products would be given a preference."

However, in composing the differences Mr. Law's speech, which was delivered in the heart of industrial Lancashire, and was an appeal to that county and the industrial north generally, stirred up a hornet's nest. To the orthodox unionist, who always votes for his party, Mr. Law's declarations were considered satisfactory, and they cannot be said to have been unsatisfactory to the liberals, who believe that, so long as the unionists stick to their policy of tariff reform the liberals are pretty sure of retaining power.

But throughout the country, and particularly in the manufacturing districts, there are a great many men, who while instinctively unionist, in the elections since 1906, or since the idea of Joseph Chamberlain became the chief plank of the party, have voted liberal because of the distrust of certain aspects of the tariff reform program. These men were willing to accept Mr. Palfour's promise of a referendum, as they felt reasonably certain that when asked the straight question the people would vote for the retention of free trade, especially in food stuffs, and the effect was seen in the last general election and in subsequent bye elections where the liberal majorities were reduced.

These results encouraged some of the younger unionists to declare that when returned to power a tariff would be introduced without a referendum and the effect was immediately seen in the bye elections at Bolton, which the unionists hoped to win, which went against them. In fact, England, or at any rate the north of England, Scotland and Ulster, Ireland, have a long way to go before they will accept the tariff reform program in full—food taxes and all.

Besides manufacturers and operatives of the north, there is a very strong press, including the Times, the very influential papers of Manchester, Liverpool, Leeds and other manufacturing towns against the tariff on food products. In the unionist party in the house of commons a unionist correspondent has calculated that the 60 or 70 per cent of members who supported Walter Long for the leadership of the party, when Mr. Law was selected as a compromise candidate, favor the referendum, while the rest who supported Austen Chamberlain for the position, are for the whole program.

The whole makes a good election cry for the liberals, who ask why are collected in whose fiscal policy the mother country has no voice, should decide the policy of the United Kingdom.

It may, too, have a distinct bearing on home rule, when that measure reaches the house of lords. It is said that the Ulster peers and many of the English unionist lords, who were never very energetic supporters of Mr. Chamberlain's policy, are willing to throw overboard their reform to save the union, whereas many others are willing to carry home rule in some form or other, hoping thereby to obtain another election on tariff reform. Some of Mr. Chamberlain's followers have already canvassed the possibility of letting the home rule bill pass, believing that when that is out of the way the government will be willing to go to the country, and the road will be cleared for their pet hobby.

ASK KONOP TO VOTE FOR ARMY CANTEEN

Appleton National Guard Officials Urge Passage of Proposed Army Measure.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Appleton, Wis., Jan. 18.—The local national guard officials telegraphed to Congressman T. F. Konop last night asking him to support the army canteen bill which is scheduled to come up in a day or two. From observations in the Spanish War they believe that the canteen has advanced tolerance in the service and also prevents disease, because it causes the post to be without the present surroundings of low saloons and degraded women.

TURKISH EMISSARY BITTER IN ATTITUDE TOWARD THE POWERS

Declares That European Nations Have Not Been Fair in Position Toward Turkey in Present War.

London, Jan. 18.—Osman Nizami Pasha, the Turkish ambassador to Germany, who is in London in connection with the peace negotiations, issued a statement today bitterly arraigning the European powers for their attitude in the joint note delivered to the Porte.

"Four months ago," he said, "Europe proclaimed its determination to maintain the state of things existing before the war, whatever the result of the conflict might be. Now the powers are making open alliance to the possible loss of Turkey, Constantinople, and some of the Asiatic provinces. What reliance can Turkey place on the powers' promise to exclude all menace to the security of Turkey when Europe has just given tangible evidence of how little her promises are worth?"

The Ottoman government's reply to the note of the European powers which was presented to the Porte by the ambassadors at Constantinople yesterday, will be a rejoinder and the adjunction of territory to the Balkan allies according to a private dispatch received in London this afternoon from the Turkish capital. The reply it is understood from the same source of information, will be conciliatory on the other points in dispute and will intimate Turkey's readiness to resume the peace negotiations in London on this basis. The delegates in London of the Balkan allies say that if this forecast of the Turkish reply is confirmed by events, it means a resumption of the war.

STRIKE IN CHICAGO IS GROWING SERIOUS

Construction Work May Be Tied Up by Walk-out of Workmen—Garment Makers May Strike.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Jan. 18.—Labor leaders today predicted that the sympathetic strike begun yesterday when 800 men walked out and tied up two of the largest buildings in the course of construction in the Loop district, would spread unless the firm, said to be responsible for the troubles, settles their difference with the union. Forty thousand Chicago garment workers may be called out on a strike next week in sympathy with the New York strikers. The officials of the United States garment workers' organization are said to have discovered that the eastern manufacturers are sending orders here to be filled. They assert that unless shipment of such goods is stopped a general strike will be ordered in all shops controlled by the employers' association.

Commander of Federal Forces at Vera Cruz and Commander of Arsenal There Have Been Removed.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Washington, Jan. 18.—General Beltran, commander of the Mexican federal forces at Vera Cruz and commander Azeta in charge of the arsenal there, have been removed. Beltran commanded the federal forces which put down the uprising led by Gen. Felix Diaz, now a prisoner in Vera Cruz. How You Can Tell The Best Goods to Buy

You have often received a substitute for the article you asked for and upon using it found the quality to be inferior. In time, the manufacturer of the article you wanted learns of the cheap imitation, and begins suit against the imitator for infringement of trademark, unfair business competition, or some other good legal reason.

Your interests are the manufacturer's interests. His trademark, name, package design, and advertisements are guarantees to you of definite quality and reasonable price. He defends them regardless of cost, for they are his business life, name, or package design. He pays the state for registering a trademark, package design or business name, and is given the right to protect them. This protects you when buying, since you often can think of nothing but the trademark, business name, or package design.

THE GAZETTE'S advertisers are spending thousands of dollars every year to give you protection from inferior quality and cheap imitations. It pays manufacturers to advertise worthy articles in THE GAZETTE and it will pay you to read these advertisements closely and constantly every day as a matter of self-protection. WANT OREGON PLAN OF NAMING SENATORS Election Committee of Legislature Has Endorsed Popular Election Proposal.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 18.—The Oregon plan for popular election of United States senators will be presented to Wisconsin legislature early next week by Assemblyman E. J. Kneen of La Crosse county. The bill was unanimously endorsed by the election committee last year but failed in the house by a few votes. Mr. Kneen says there is an increasing sentiment in favor of the measure and anticipates it will pass this year without serious opposition. Under the law in Oregon, each party at the primary election nominates a candidate for United States senator. The nominations are made by the party as is now custom in Wisconsin, under the primary election method. The men nominated as candidates of each party at the September primary are voted for at the election next ensuing, and the one received the highest number of votes is under the law designated as the people's choice.

Under the same law candidates for the legislature both senators and assemblymen are permitted voluntarily to take a pledge: first, in case of election, to vote for the people's choice for the United States senator, without regard to individual preferences; or, second, to treat the vote of the people as advisory. Men may become candidates for the legislature, however, without making any pledge.

The result of the Oregon trial was that although the legislature was overwhelmingly republican, George E. Chamberlain, a democrat, a former governor, was overwhelmingly endorsed for United States senator. Nearly all assemblymen and senators pledged themselves to vote for the people's choice. Only in a few isolated instances has a candidate for the legislature declined to sign the blank which is filed with the secretary of state, by which he pledges himself to vote for the people's choice.

The election committee will hold its first hearing next Tuesday. As soon as three election contests have been settled, Assemblyman Kneen expects to have his bill ready for introduction and it will be taken up immediately. It is understood a number of progressive republicans are in favor of the plan. Kneen believes this bill will take the legislature out of a straggling political hubbub always occurring when a United States senatorial contest is on.

SIT HENRY BESSEMER BORN A CENTURY AGO

Invented Process for Converting Cast Iron Into Steel Without the Use of Fuel.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, Jan. 18.—It will be one hundred years tomorrow since there was born in a little village in Hertfordshire a man whose life, according to the opinions expressed by the newspapers at the time of his death fifteen years ago, had been more useful to humanity than that of any other one person. The man was Sir Henry Bessemer, who will be known forever as the inventor of the process for converting cast iron into steel without the use of fuel.

Bessemer did for the steel industry what Newton did for astronomy and what Darwin did for natural science. The revolution in that industry following upon Bessemer's discovery was as great as the revolution in industry at large following upon the discovery of applied steam power.

Before the Bessemer process came to vogue the production of steel in Great Britain was only 50,000 tons annually and the average price was $250 a ton. In 1901 the production in the United Kingdom reached 6,500,000 tons. In the same year the United States produced nearly 25,000,000 tons. The saving to the world by the cheapening of steel is estimated at $250,000,000 a year—equal to more than one-half the world's entire output of gold for the same period.

HOLD-UP MAN'S LIFE IS DISAPPOINTMENT

Confessed Automobile Bandit Says There Was Lots of Competition in the Business.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Chicago, Jan. 18.—"This life of a hold-up man is not what a fellow might think it was," observed James B. Perry, confessed leader of a gang of automobile bandits that has been operating in Chicago for two months, after being questioned further today by Police Captain Lavin, "and the worst of it is that we all get caught sooner or later." Perry declared that he and his accomplices comprised only one of many gangs committing robbery in this city. "We probably were the first to go into business this winter," said the youthful highwayman, "but many other gangs took our example. There seemed to be business enough for all." The bandit leader and a young boy who gives the name of Walter Scott, were betrayed to the police by a woman, with whom it is said Perry had been on familiar terms for a number of years. The trio lived together in a south side flat, the police assert. Finally Perry and the woman quarreled, according to the police report, and she "tipped off" his whereabouts, and that of the lad who is believed to have served the robbers in the capacity of chauffeur. It is claimed the woman recently became a mother, and that Perry refused to pay her hospital expenses. Perry stubbornly refused to divulge the names of his other companions, declaring he was willing to hang if it be so decreed, but that he would not "snitch on his pals."

SUSPENDS ANDERSON AS PART OF FIGHT TO STAY IN OFFICE

Eckern Discharges Actuary Recently Appointed to Succeed Him by Governor.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Madison, Jan. 18.—L. A. Anderson, whose appointment as insurance commissioner has been sent to the senate was today suspended as actuary in the insurance department by Commissioner Herman L. Eckern. The suspension is for fifteen days. Service was obtained on Anderson at 10:20 o'clock this morning at Rock Island, Ill.

This action of Eckern is intended to head off the governor's coupe of claiming that as an employee Anderson was already in the office and no legal proceedings would be required to put him into the commissioner's chair. Anderson's suspension is based on the grounds that he had destroyed his usefulness to the department by making it impossible for the head of the department to co-operate with him in the best interests of the state.

Anderson is charged with being in "secret consultation with the governor planning and conniving with him in illegally and without cause, and solely without purpose to remove your superior as head of this department from office and to place you in my stead."

HATPINS ARE USED BY WOMEN STRIKERS

Hundred Female Garment Workers in Fight With Police at New York Today.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] New York, Jan. 18.—With hatpins and umbrellas several hundred women fought the police today in one of the fiercest riots since the beginning of the garment workers' strike. A policeman who tried to arrest male strike-breakers was severely beaten. The officer arrested one woman and had to summon twelve more blue coats before he could get his prisoner to the station. The police accomplished this by forming a hollow square which was beset on all sides by the battling garment workers. Five women were arrested in another riot started when the women assaulted a truck driver delivering mattresses for the use of the strike-breakers.

The strike of dress and shirt waist makers, one of several trades involved in the garment work-out, was settled at noon today and most of the 37,000 workers will return to the shops next Monday. The difficulty had threatened a serious shortage in the supply of spring garments.

In Chicago, Jan. 18.—An alleged employment agency, which advertised for 150 garment workers to take the place of New York strikers, was closed by the police today two hours after it had been opened.

ATTENDANCE GOOD ON LAST DAY OF EXHIBIT

FIFTH ANNUAL POULTRY SHOW OF SOUTHERN WISCONSIN POULTRY ASSOCIATION CLOSING TONIGHT.

SPECIAL AWARDS MADE

Today was the final day of the fifth annual poultry show of the Southern Wisconsin Poultry Association and the exhibition will close about half past ten or eleven o'clock tonight. Throughout the day there has been a large attendance at the show, especially this afternoon, when a large number of farmers and their families visited the auditorium to view the fancy stock. The greater part of the attendance throughout the week has been made up of residents of the rural districts, and considerable interest in the show has been shown by them. "It would surprise the merchants of the city to know how many farmers and their families who have been in town this week," said Superintendent Edward Amerphol today, "and the show is without doubt the finest in the state. There are from fifty to seventy-five birds here that are eligible for entrance in the Madison Square Garden Show, and birds that won in the Chicago show were outclassed by some of the fowls exhibited here. There is one single comb white leghorn pullet here, owned and raised by W. H. Ashcraft, that was scored 96½ and was pronounced by Judge Keeler to be the finest of its variety he has ever seen. There is also a pair of White Wyandottes that were exhibited at Madison Square Garden, including two birds that were scored 94½. Dr. Munn has a fine pen of Rose Comb White Leghorns which were exhibited in Chicago."

The work of the judges in scoring the birds was completed late yesterday afternoon and the work of awarding the special premiums was taken up. In the office of Show Secretary E. Lane, there has been considerable work in figuring up the awards, making out the lists of special premiums and other labors of a clerical nature.

DRUGGISTS PURCHASE PALMYRA SANITORIUM

E. B. Heimstreet, Former Janesville Man, Negotiates Transfer of $125,000 Property For National Home.

Druggists of the United States have purchased the Palmyra Springs Lake Sanatorium for a national druggists' home. The transaction was negotiated in Chicago yesterday by E. B. Heimstreet, for many years a Janesville resident, who is treasurer of the board of directors of five men who have the entire management of the resort.

The property which has been valued at $125,000 is located most beautifully and is one of the most delightful spots of the Southern Wisconsin lake region. The building is completely furnished with the best of furniture and accessories and has accommodations for 175 guests. It is located on a 65-acre park.

Mr. Heimstreet who was in this city this morning on his way home from Chicago, stated that the foundation of this home was a national affair in which practically every druggist in the country is interested. The building will be used for a resort place in the summer time where the druggists and their families can come for their vacations.

A campaign will be conducted on a national scale for the payment of the property. Circulars will be mailed to practically every druggist in the country soliciting a "vacation day" contribution of $5 each to the fund. The Farmers' Saving bank of Palmyra is made the depository of the funds.

The first manufacturer to make a donation was the Horlick Milk company of Racine who telegraphed $1,000. The first wholesale drug firm to contribute was Morrison, Plummer and company of Chicago with $200. The next was the Stearns Electric company with $100.

OTTERBEIN MALE QUARTET PLEASES MILTON AUDIENCE

Delightful Program Given Last Evening—Number of High School Lecture Course.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Milton, Jan. 18.—The Otterbein male quartet and bell ringers drew the largest audience of the high school lecture course thus far and pleased with their varied and popular program. Although two of the quartet were suffering with colds their voices blended nicely, the only noticeable defect being that they lacked their usual volume of tone, which perhaps would not have been apparent in a smaller hall. The impersonations by Manager Engle were fine and kept the crowd in a jovial and receptive mood for the lighter vocal numbers. Their selection from Lucia and rendering of Van de Water's "Sunset" were appreciated most by the musicians present. The Otterbeins are the first bell ringers to sing with the playing the bells and their work pleased. Those who had heard the orchestra bells and not bell ringers may have been disappointed in not hearing the same ringing clarity in the muffled hand-bells, but the Otterbeins proved themselves up to the standard set for this difficult work. The evening's program was a success and varied to meet the desires of a mixed audience. The next number on the course is scheduled for Tuesday, February 14th, when Miss Adah Jessup Johnson will present an evening of readings and impersonations.

Catarrh of the Stomach

I have been asked various questions about catarrh of the stomach. Some people seem to think it strange that there should be such a disease. They ask, "Can catarrh, the same kind of catarrh that one has in the nose, and throat, get into the stomach?" And if so, what does it do to the stomach?

Yes, the same kind of catarrh that one has in the nose, the same kind of catarrh that affects the cavities of the head, the same kind of catarrh to which the throat is subject, may affect the mucous membranes of the stomach. As I told you in previous articles, the stomach is lined with a mucous membrane. So is the nose and the throat. Wherever there is a mucous membrane there is a liability to catarrh. Catarrh is essentially a disease of the mucous membrane.

Peruna Removes the Cause. It is perfectly useless to take artificial digestants, or to take dyspepsia remedies. What is needed is a catarrh remedy.

Peruna is not only a catarrh remedy, but is a digestant. Therefore, Peruna will not only temporarily assist the stomach in its function and thus give prompt relief, but it tends also towards eradicating the catarrh. The cause of most cases of dyspepsia, heart burn, sour rising, full feeling after meals, coated tongue, constipation, the cause of most cases of this sort is catarrh of the stomach. Advertisement.

Here's a new superstition in the pugilistic realm. Fighters now say that to be a favorite in the betting on the Pacific coast means sure defeat. In the New Year's fight Palmer was a slight favorite over McCarty. In the fight between Jim Flynn and McCarty, Flynn was favorite. In the fight between Tommy Murphy and "Frankie" Burns, Burns was the odds-on choice. "Twas the same way when Wolcott lost to Ritchie, when Corbett fell before Fitzsimmons, when Jeffris bowed before Jack Johnson at Reno, and when Kilbane won the championship from Abe Attell. Moral: If you have pugilistic aspirations, don't make a hit with the coast fans.

Philadelphia National league fans have not lost confidence in Manager Charlie Doin, and they agree he'll prove a benefit next season if he doesn't have another run of hard luck. Doin was hoodooed last year. He hardly had his string intact more than 15 days during the entire campaign. Lobert missed 37 games. Knake 25, Cravath 22, Magee 26. Not one member of the team took part in all the contests.

Mike Gibbons is taking life very easily at St. Paul. Reddy, his manager, according to Eddie Reddy, his manager, he is just aching to get his fingers on Eddie McGorty again. Eddie admits Mike was too wary of the Oshkosh boy when the pair met in New York. "Besides," says Reddy, "it was the first fight in the middleweight division and the result meant so much to him he was worried and fretful and could not do his best."

Evidently Mike's poor showing in the New York fight has not decreased his popularity. Reddy has offers from promoters in Indianapolis, Omaha and Denver. Mike's next fight will probably be about the middle of next month.

Ban Johnson, president of the American league, is said to have two hobbies—poetry and war stories. In the realm of poetry his first love is Barbara Fritchie, which he can recite backwards, forwards and sideways. In the matter of war stories, he has everybody else backed off the map.

Detroit has been thinking seriously of asking waivers on Davy Jones. The little outfielder didn't seem to be quite on the job last year. If waivers are asked on him it is said that Manager Griffith of Washington will try to get hold of him. It is figured that with Jones in the fold the Nationals would be better fortified in the outfield than the team has ever been.

INTERNATIONAL CHESS TOURNAMENT BEGINS

United States, France and Cuba Represented by Their Champions.

New York, Jan. 18.—With the drawing for position tomorrow the biggest chess tournament that has taken place on this side of the Atlantic in a decade will get under way in this city. The event, for which preparations have been making for several months, has been designated as the American National Chess Masters' tournament. Though the committee was unsuccessful in its effort to secure all the great European experts as participants it succeeded in obtaining a number sufficient to insure spirited competition. Heading the list are Frank J. Marshall, the United States champion; D. Janowski, champion of France, and Capablanca, the Cuban champion.

BASEBALL NOTES.

All the clubs in the major leagues have engaged their managers for the coming season. The list shows that quite a number of new pilots will be seen in the big show when the going rings for the opening game next April. Joe Tinker of the Cincinnati Reds, Miller Huggins of the St. Louis Cardinals, Johnny Evers of the Chicago Cubs, and George Stallings of the Boston Braves, are the new managers in the National League. Frank Chance of the New York Highlanders is the only new manager in the American League, although George Stovall of the St. Louis Browns and Joe Birmingham of the Cleveland Naps may come under the head of new managers, as both took charge of their respective teams last last season. Managers in the major leagues for 1913 and 1912 follow:

OUR SATURDAY NIGHT.

The Superintendent of the Arizona state prison at Florence was one day called to the long distance telephone to receive this strange message from Phoenix:
"Send Bob Anderson to the capitol on the next train—this is Hunt speaking."
Now Bob Anderson was a reputed bad man, and the prison superintendent was resolving in his mind whether he had any guards that could be spared to accompany the prisoner. But the suspense was soon ended.
"Give him a ticket—and some money—and send him alone," the voice continued. "Tell him I want to see him at the governor's office," says Randall R. Howard in February Technical World Magazine.
The life-time convict was very ill at ease when he arrived alone at Governor Hunt's office, several hours later.
"I want you to go up on the Verde and get the prison train," the recently-elected governor announced, after Anderson's suspense had been relieved by some pleasanties. "The horses are in a pasture way up there in the mountains, costing the state eight dollars a month—while out at the prison we are paying out between thirty-five and forty dollars a month for another team to replace them."
The arrangements were soon completed. Anderson was provided with a ticket to go as far as he could by train. Then he was given money to buy groceries, for he was starting on a week's journey out across the lonely desert and up into the wild, rough foothills at the edge of the timbered mountains.
It was not long before the newspapers got hold of this score-head story—this most rash act of the new governor in releasing, scot-free, a convicted murderer who hadn't been outside of prison walls or beyond the fire of a dozen riflemen for years. The governor's closest advisers deplored what he had done, and the opposition newspapers hinted that the chief executive must be either insane or secretly conniving. At the very best, the opposition boldly declared, the governor was sorely tempting the convict—donating him money, provisions, and the use of two of the state's horses, and sending him off alone into the wilderness.
The week went around—and Anderson came back with the team, to his life-time prison cell. Arizona, which has a larger proportionate prison population than any other state in the union, has learned its first lesson in the application of the radical and bold "honor system" among convicts.

It is an old saying that there is honor among thieves, and the truth of the statement is often verified. The young bandit arrested in Chicago last Thursday, confessed to a long list of crime, but insisted that the boys who were captured with him, were innocent of complicity with him.
The law of the land is so just that it regards every man innocent until proven guilty, but the weakness of humanity often transposes this law, and in our suspicion we often treat people as though they were guilty, and are sometimes slow to accept proof of innocence.
The man from Missouri has become a national character, and more people are saying "Show me!" today than ever before. This lack of confidence in dealing with strangers, is natural, because the present generation is living in a gold-brick era, and so many men have gold-bribe mines in the south, that skepticism has developed.
The restlessness of the age has also destroyed confidence, and the doctrine of independence in both thought and action, has been so thoroughly exploited that more individual units are floating and drifting today than at any time in the history of the nation.
The solidarity which we so long enjoyed as a people has become weakened and demoralized, and as a result, the country is over-run with men without a party, and people without a creed.
The crime of wealth has been heralded by the agitator and muck-raker, so long and persistently, that the seeds of the doctrine have taken root, until corporations have become a by-word and the clamor for equal distribution is constantly increasing in volume.
The recognition of mutual dependence and the disposition to be mutual, helpful, have long been the bulwarks of the republic and any man who either through ignorance or by intent, seeks to destroy the confidence which enters into this alliance, is an enemy to public welfare.
Appeals to prejudice and ignorance have led many people who had no grievance, to believe that they were abused, and many of the states, as well as the federal government, have attempted unreasonable reforms to satisfy popular clamor.

As a result all kinds of regulative laws have been passed, and burdensome taxation has followed, while confidence has been scattered to the four winds, and personal honor finds it difficult to gain a foothold, even in the courts of the land.
The railroads of the country are facing today the problem of unusual expenditures demanded by law, with no money in sight or obtainable to meet the demands, and all because confidence has been destroyed by persistent attacks upon these "souless corporations."
In our own state the busy reformer is urging the immediate passage of the initiative and referendum, as the climax to a lot of reform measures which have filled the state with political orphans.
These nefarious measures will be submitted to the people, as a constitutional amendment, and they will adopt them, because seventy-five per cent of the voters will not take interest enough to vote, and a majority of the twenty-five per cent, who do, will be influenced by the political promoters.

The atmosphere created by this maelstrom of unrest, is a tainted atmosphere, and the boys and girls of the new generation absorb it to their detriment, because it exerts a baleful influence during the formative period of life.
The home and the school never confronted problems of graver responsibility than are before them today. They have the opportunity to instill into the minds the seeds of confidence, and to cultivate the tender plant until it develops a sturdy trait of character.
A boy or girl has no right to go out into active life possessed of a mind poisoned with suspicion, and when they do, they invite the same lack of confidence. The girl who slanders her friends, has no friends too sacred to slander, and this principle applies all along down the line. The world responds with the treatment accorded.
Ninety-five per cent of the business men of the country are honest, not because they are compelled to be, but because they believe in honesty, as a fundamental principle.
By the same token a very large percentage of toilers, in the various channels of industrial life are honest, and believe in rendering faithful service for value received.
The men who serve us in public life are selected because of the confidence we have in them, and it is the rare exception when they prove recreant.
The fact is that honesty and virtue are so common, and prevail so universally, that they attract no attention. The bank defaulter is heralded around the world, while the honest banker escapes notice.
Many of the men who are serving long sentences for murder, are honest men. The crime which cost them liberty is often committed when the brain is crazed with drink. This may have been the case with the man in the Arizona prison. At any rate the governor had confidence in his honor and it was not misplaced.
The best governed home and the best governed school, is the home and school where honor is recognized and trusted. Confidence is like a tonic and the best that is in us responds to the touch of its wholesome influence.

The trouble with the Manhattan and Bronx cockroaches is that they didn't stay at home.

Galveston is now connected with the rest of Texas by a causeway. Somebody has evidently stolen the causeway that connected Senator Joe Bailey with that state.
Honolulu reports an earthquake. The Japanese, for a wonder, are not suspected.
English couple will go on a honeymoon in an aeroplane. Let it be hoped they don't have a falling out.
One idea of no sort of job for a live man is to be a member of the faculty of the electoral college.

From the Hickeyville Clarion.
Professor E. Pluribus Jenkins, the new superintendent of the Hickeyville schools, will give a moving picture lecture with 4,500 feet of films at the school house next Thursday evening, showing the working of the human system and how to reduce the high cost of living. He will show the human stomach running on high speed and digesting breakfast food and again running on secondary speed, digesting corned beef and cabbage. He will also show the effects of whiskey on the thorax. A free will offering will be taken and the professor will give enough to pay for printing the handbills if he is lucky. If the professor had lived in our midst very long he would take time by the forelock and charge an admission at the door.

NUMEROUS PARDONS BROUGHT GOVERNOR DIX INTO DISFAVOR

Acts of Clemency Resulted in Release of Physicians Imprisoned for Malpractice—Stray Topics.
New York, Jan. 18.—When former Governor Dix left his office at the expiration of his term he left behind him a record the stretch of which still continues to irritate the nostrils of the public. His flagrant abuse of the pardoning power, in emulation of the example of certain Southern governors, is now forming the subject of an investigation and enough has been disclosed already to make the actions of the former governor appear in a highly peculiar light. The end is not yet, however, and it is quite probable that some of the former governor's "acts of clemency" will keep the courts of New York busy for some time. It has been found, among other things, that Governor Dix pardoned and thus returned to citizenship three doctors who had been sentenced to terms of imprisonment for malpractice. In two of the cases the governor neither informed the district attorney nor the County Medical Society which had brought about the conviction of the men. In the third case the district attorney was notified of the appeal for a pardon and strongly protested against the granting of the pardon. Notwithstanding his protest, however, the governor granted the pardon. Two of the pardoned malpractitioners now demand the restoration of their licenses to practice and it is quite probable that the County Medical Society will take the matter to the courts to prevent the restoration of the licenses to these two men.

Thaw Has Liberty.
Harry K. Thaw enjoyed another spell of comparative liberty last week, when he was brought to New York from Matteawan to serve as witness in the suit brought in the Federal District Court by John Gleason against Mrs. Harry Copley Thaw for $30,000 as his fee for services during the first trial of Thaw for murder. During his visit to New York Harry K. Thaw was in charge of Dr. Roy Leak of the asylum staff and stopped at the Belmont Hotel. There seems to be something incongruous about this matter. Thaw is insane it seems strange that he should be considered competent to act as witness in a civil suit. He is not insane, his continued detention at the Matteawan institution would seem an act of injustice.

Archaised Horse Cars.
If anyone in this period of automobiles and trolley cars wishes to see one of the archaic vehicles called "horse cars" in regular operation, he must come to New York. Here that antique method of transportation is still in daily use, much to the surprise and amusement of the thousands of transients who visit the city every day. As a rule there is not much of an exciting nature about these horse cars. The horses plod along sedately following the historic route along the water front and stop at their accord at the slightest pretext. Yet, the other day one of these unreluctant vehicles furnished quite a sensation the other day. Without any warning the two horses hitched to one of these cars bolted and trailing the broken harness, ran away. The two animals raced furiously along the water front, narrowly escaping collisions with the numerous trucks along the route. Finally they turned toward the river, ran on one of the snow dumping docks and, after one of the horses had fallen and broken its leg, the other continued to the end of the dock from which it lived into the icy water of the Hudson, there to find a watery grave. It is believed by some that the horse, greatly depressed over the humiliating position in which they found themselves and filled with despair over the hopelessness of the existing conditions, decided to end their lives by suicide.

Walters Stole Fortune.
The police made a good haul when they arrested the six men who had committed numerous thefts and burglaries in and around the Hotel St. Andrew during the last few months. Several of the men were employed in the St. Andrew and made such profitable use of the opportunities which their positions gave them, that with the assistance of a few outsiders, among them a woman and an accommodating and not over scrupulous pawnbroker they were able to live in luxury and accumulate a fortune of more than $100,000.

Beachcombers' Harvest.
The beachcombers who flock to Rockaway Beach after a heavy storm to search the beach for treasure, made a big haul after one of the recent storms. The waves had washed several inches of the light surface sand into the sea, exposing a great deal of the heavier substratum. The beachcombers, about three hundred in number, carefully "combed" the beach and found a great collection of watches, jewelry and money, valued at several thousand dollars. The collection included three gold watches, more than one hundred rings, some of them quite valuable, many bracelets, stickpins, etc. All of these articles had been lost during the past summer by careless patrons of the bathing place.

Duel Was Harmless.
A dispute over the Balkan war led to a regular duel between an Italian and a Dutchman a short time ago. The two men and their seconds met in a vacant lot at Seventeenth Street and Eleventh Avenue at six o'clock one evening. The adversaries, armed with revolvers were placed back to back and at a given signal they turned about and began to blaze away at each other. Both emptied their weapons without hitting anybody or anything in particular, not even their seconds. A policeman who heard the shooting, arrived just in time to see the Dutchman and arrested the duellists and their seconds. When their case came up in the Court of General Sessions the two duellists informed the court that they had made up their quarrel and were willing to leave the country if the judge would let them go. The judge consented to suspend the sentence and after the duellists had thanked him they embraced and kissed each other in the presence of the court and then made a bee line for the dock where the steamer Savio was preparing for sailing.

Had Narrow Escape.
The inhabitants of Sparta Junction, a small place over in New Jersey, are congratulating themselves and each other for being still among the living. They were making up a train on the railroad running through the village, when the cars crashed into a car standing on a siding and containing 45,000 pounds of dynamite. The car was so badly wrecked that the dangerous load had to be transferred to another car, but the dynamite did not explode. The place is pretty hard to find on the map as it is, but if the dynamite had gone off it is safe to assume that Sparta Junction would have been completely blown off the map as well as off the earth.

ITALIAN COUNTERFEITER CONVICTED AT DULUTH.

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 18.—A jury in the United States District Court returned a verdict last night convicting Tony Milano, one of the two brothers indicted for counterfeiting. Tony was one of eleven Italians arrested in Cleveland, last September for making counterfeit half dollars. He was released in Cleveland on a bail of $2500 and jumped his bond and came west. When taken in Duluth, Tony had molds, dies, spurious coins and other paraphernalia for counterfeiting. Judge Charles Willard sentenced Tony

MAY PROVIDE WORK FOR JAIL INMATES

COUNTY BOARD TAKES ACTION BEFORE ADJOURNMENT ON FRIDAY AFTERNOON.

ORDER INVESTIGATION

J. A. Denning, W. A. Rosow and R. K. Overtun Will Report on Matter At April Meeting—Other Business

Supervisors J. A. Denning, W. A. Rosow and R. K. Overtun were appointed to investigate the matter of employment for the prisoners at the county jail and to report at the April meeting of the board.

Action on this matter was taken shortly before adjournment Friday afternoon. Supervisor Denning introduced the resolution which read as follows: "That a committee of three be appointed by the chairman to investigate and report to this board at its next meeting as to the advisability of establishing a method and system of employing the inmates of the county jail."

There has been some agitation in favor of some plan for keeping the prisoners busy and the local police officials and former sheriff Ransom have expressed themselves in favor of a "stone pile." There was no discussion of the matter brought up yesterday but the proposition will be thrashed out in April.

May Wire Court House.

The court house may be wired for electric lights in the near future. Supervisor Hopkins of the building committee reported to the board late yesterday that there had been several complaints to him that the lighting facilities, especially in the court room, were inadequate. The gas fixtures, some of them, are useless and the supply pipe is not large enough to supply the necessary amount of gas for good lights when a large number of lamps are lighted.

Mr. Hopkins stated that the committee in talking the matter over had agreed that it would probably be advisable to wire the court house for electricity providing it could be done reasonably. The board authorized the committee to take whatever action it deemed advisable.

Vacation to Nelson.

The board voted a thirty day vacation on full pay to L. M. Nelson, janitor of the court house, and further provided that he secure a substitute to do the work in his absence at the expense of the county. This is the first vacation during which the county has allowed Mr. Nelson an assistance to be paid out of the county funds, during his thirty years of service.

The board authorized the building committee to make the purchase of a new Austin roller on as reasonable terms as possible trading in the old machine which is in a bad condition.

SCOTS MAKE MERRY AT ANNUAL AFFAIR

Large Attendance at Burns' Entertainment at Assembly Hall Last Evening.

Members of the Rock County Caledonian society and their friends enjoyed the annual entertainment and dance on the occasion of the 154th birthday anniversary of Robert Burns, Scotland's favorite poet, at Assembly hall last evening.

There was a large attendance at the affair which opened with a concert by the George L. Hatch orchestra at seven-thirty. An hour's program was furnished by Mr. Alton Packard, a well known cartoonist, who entertained the assembly with a series of pictures. While at work with his crayon he kept up a flow of humorous remarks and clever witticisms.

The dance program of fifteen numbers proved very delightful and included several quadrilles which were thoroughly enjoyed by the dancers. Credit for the success of the event is due the officers of the Caledonian society, Jesse Darle, president, W. J. Jones, secretary and J. H. Jones, treasurer.

GIRL KILLED WHILE DRESSED AS A MAN

Rose Du Rand Father Shot As Thieves by Farmer—Daughter Running Away From Home.

(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)

Nevada, Mo., Jan. 18.—As a result of what is believed to have been an attempt by Rose Du Rand, twenty years old, daughter of Jake Du Rand, a farmer, to run away from home in man's attire, Miss Du Rand was shot to death and her father dangerously wounded early today by Claude Beetle, on the Beetle farm sixteen miles south of here.

According to Beetle's story at the coroner's inquest this afternoon he fired at the pair under the impression that they were stealing corn, not knowing that one was a woman. But said he believed his daughter's mind was deranged. She arose early today, he said, and dressed in man's clothing left the house. He pursued her and finally found her hiding in the corn crib on the Beetle farm adjoining his own. He was endeavoring to get her to return home, he said, when Beetle ordered them away and they ran. The shooting followed.

WESTON IS CHARGED WITH FORGING CHECK ON CINCINNATI MAN

Chief of Police Coplan of That City Informs Chief of Police Appleby Of His Alleged Crime.

John H. Weston, former bookkeeper of the Rock River Woolen Mills who was arrested in Milwaukee on Saturday, December 8, and who escaped from the custody of a Pinkerton detective here before he could be arraigned on the charge of embezzling $25 from his former employers, is wanted in Cincinnati, Ohio, to answer for a similar crime according to a letter received this afternoon by Chief of Police Appleby from Chief of Police William Coplan of that city.

Weston is charged with forging the name of Benjamin, Hay & Company to check for $25, payable at the First National Bank of Cincinnati, and passing it to Daniel C. Dawson on December 31. Chief Coplan writes that "he is now said to be employed as bookkeeper for the Janesville Woolen Company," and also describes Weston as being between twenty-five and thirty years of age and from five feet eight inches to five feet ten inches tall.

Benjamin, Hay & Company is a firm which has business dealings with the Rock River Woolen Company and it appears Weston was in their employ for some time previous to the time on which he is alleged to have committed the forgery.

WOMAN'S PAGE

CHATS WITH THINKING WOMEN
by Barbara Boyd

The Domestic Life and Women

Those who read the signs of the times, it begins to look as if domestic life were palling on woman. Perhaps it always did pall, but having no way of escape, she endured it. But now that the road to go whither she will is open to her, she is hastily and in large numbers leaving the domestic enclosure, and adventuring with zest upon the broad highway. Sometime ago a woman prominent in wealthy and fashionable circles left her home and children because she was irritated by domesticity. She had no quarrel with her husband. There was no other man or woman in the case. She simply could not endure the narrow, irritating, monotonous domestic round.

A correspondent who, though she feels that duty is calling her back to her home, writes, she cannot bear to think of giving up her business life and going back to the "slavery of domesticity," as she phrases it. "The very thought of that home-yoke is nauseating," is the conclusion of her letter.

Another business woman who gave up her position to take charge of the home because of the chaotic condition of domestic service, is frantically trying to re-enter the business world. "I simply can't endure this domestic life," she says. "I'd die if I thought that was all there was ahead of me for the rest of my existence."

And more and more are women who marry keeping right on with the work they were engaged in before marriage.

And from still another quarter comes a protesting voice,—that of the servant girl's (so-called). In increasing numbers, she likewise is refusing to enter the realm of domestic service. She will soon become extinct. And museums of the future will have personations of her in wax, as one of the curiosities of the nineteenth century.

But when so many protests are heard, surely something is wrong. And when the voices come from such widely separated circles, the fault cannot be with the individual, but must be with the thing itself.

So it would seem as if the domestic life, as it is today, stands convicted before the bar of common judgment of being unworthy of a woman's best endeavors.

What then shall we do? Shall we let domestic life die out? Or make it so keep step with progress that women will find it a realm pleasant to work in?

Surely we need what the domestic life stands for. So would it not be well to heed these signs of the times, and introduce into it the method and system, the profits and pleasures, that make the business life attractive to women.

Barbara Boyd.

HEART and HOME PROBLEMS
by MRS. ELIZABETH THOMPSON

Dear Mrs. Thompson: (1)—I am a girl of 21. I have been going with a gentleman of 22 for a year. He stopped coming for about two months, but I met him the other day and he wished to come and see me again. Does he love me? He comes now on Sunday. I have two big brothers at home. Do you think he wants to see them or me? He always makes fun of me when he comes, over to my home.

READER.

(1)—You are modest, my dear. I rather think he comes to see you as well as your brothers, but try and let him think that you consider he is coming to see the brothers, while you are just as sweet and interesting as you know how to be. It is always a good idea not to let your self count on any man unless he actually asks you to marry him and shows himself anxious to hurry up the marriage. Even then it's not well to be too sure.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I want your advice. All the other girls laugh at me, but I know you will listen to me. I am a girl of 14 and don't care to go out at night like my friends do. They laugh and say I am afraid of losing my mother's apron string, but I think young girls ought not to go out but stay home and read or anything else.

thing else, and go to bed about nine. Am I doing right not to heed my friends?

I am a great reader and every night I set up in bed till about 11 reading. I don't read silly novels but good books that my mother selects. I have got it into my head that I could write. I am now writing my 12th chapter. I have so much to write that I hardly can write quick enough to put down all my thoughts. Mother and our family laugh at me and never encourage me and they call me daydreamer. Should I give up or keep on? If I finish my story what would I do with it? Could I get paid for it?

A LITTLE GRATEFUL FRIEND.
You are a very dear little girl, and all the better for keeping hold of your mother's apron string. She must be a good mother.

Nine o'clock is a good time for a girl to get to bed. Most girls would be prettier and sweeter and healthier if they went to bed at such an hour. Don't sit up in bed and read until 11, my dear. It is bad for your eyes. When you go to bed make it your business to go to sleep.

It won't hurt you to keep on writing. A great many girls get the writing fever, and it really does them good to set down their thoughts on paper. When you have your story finished, bind it in pretty covers, write the title on the outside and put the little book away among your Treasures Troves. Perhaps you will keep it to show to OUR daughter some day, when SHE has the writing fever.

French Dishes of Figs and Dates.
A la Thiers—Is a mold of dates and sliced figs covered with whipped cream and decorated with cherries, angelica and crystallized violets.

Compote a la Saoud—Sliced layer figs covered with boiled custard and baked.

Compote de Figs a la Creme—Stewed whole figs with cream.

Macaronde a l'Algerienne—Dates and figs stewed slowly in cooking oil and arranged in a serving dish with alternate layers of macaroni, covered with a well flavored custard and topped with whipped cream.

DIET AND HEALTH HINTS

TEN PER CENT. ALBUMINOUS ELEMENT SUFFICIENT FOR ADULTS.

"Superior physical and probably superior mental power comes from reducing the amount of protein," says Professor Fleher, the well-known food experimenter of Yale University. This means practically a reduction in the use of lean meat and eggs, especially the whites of eggs. But he adds, "I am by no means convinced that a strictly vegetarian diet is better than a diet containing some animal and even flesh foods." It has been frequently suggested in these hints that the customary amount of protein should be reduced. I have found by many tests that ten per cent. of albuminous food is sufficient in the diet of the adult. This can be obtained without the use of eggs, flesh, cheese, nuts or even milk. The cereals, with the exception of rice, contain sufficient. I have used no meat, eggs, cheese or fish for several years. The diet of any adult can be improved by excluding meat and eggs altogether.

The Evening Chit-Chat

BY RUTH CAMERON

"It's the edge of cultivation, Ain't no use in going farther."

—Kipling.

W E were speaking the other day about a queer little railroad built and run in a very peculiar manner. "When that road was started forty years ago," said a man of sixty, "everyone said it would never come to anything because it defied all the established precedents of railroad building." Today that defiant little railroad is the best railroad operation within a radius of several hundred miles.

There is no edge of cultivation. Every century has been taught that lesson. None has learned it. What would the men of the eighteenth century have said if someone had told them that it was possible to harness steam and make carriages go a hundred miles an hour? What would the men of the nineteenth century have said if someone had told them that men would learn to fly? What DID they say? Witness the humorous poem of Darius Greene. Or better still, ask Wilbur Wright.

And still the lesson is not learned. The men and women of the twentieth century have come to accept the wonders of steam and electricity and the flying machine as commonplaces, but if you should prophesy some new and startling possibility—say the medical miracle of limb grafting—there would be plenty of folks as certain as their predecessors that they also had reached the edge of cultivation.

There is no edge of cultivation in all the world. The world is round, not flat, and therefore you cannot come to any edges. You may come back into familiar country if you travel far enough, but you cannot come to any edges because there aren't any.

"It's the edge of cultivation," is the natural proverb of age. Youth knows better. Age is always telling youth that this or that cannot be done and youth is always doing it. And then alas, youth itself passes on and says to another generation about other matters, "It's the edge of cultivation."

"It's the edge of cultivation," is the word of the mediocre man. The big man knows nothing so well as that there are no edges! He recognizes that there may be limits to his ability, but there are none to the world's possibilities.

There is a certain make of candy recently put on the market which is infinitely superior to all similar candies. If you had told the manufacturers of the old product that it was possible to make anything so much better than their product they would have said, "Nonsense. We know all there is to know about this subject and we are getting out the best thing possible." In other words, we've reached the edge of cultivation.

But they hadn't. For the other fellow went far beyond, and some day someone will probably go beyond him.

There is no edge of cultivation. Don't believe anyone who tells you there is. There's always a use in going farther for the man who has the grit to do it.

And who knows but that you are that man—or woman.

Things Worth Knowing.
Receipts for Waste Paper—Take two newspapers, sew them together on sewing machine like a bag; makes splendid place to put waste paper and sweepings. When bag is nearly full, tie at top and it is ready for the ash man.

To prevent little children from losing their mittens, take piece of flat elastic size of wrist, sew ends together and tack in one place on mitten. If put elastic on the outside of mitten to hold firmer and also keep the wind out.

While baking cake in a hurry, I wanted the nuts very fine. It took too long to chop them, so I just put them through my coffee mill. It took only a few minutes and worked fine.

Winter "Spreads."
To one can tomatoes add one lemon sliced thin, three cups sugar; simmer until jelly-like.

To juice of two lemons with grated rind, add two scant cups sugar. Beat yolks and whites separately of five eggs, mix with lemon and cook in double boiler, adding tablespoon of butter.

Use as spread on bread. Both excellent.

The Table.

Inland Oysters.—Cut squash in slices half an inch thick. Beat an egg with two tablespoons sweet milk. Sift together equal parts of flour and cornmeal. Dip squash in egg, roll in meal, which should be well seasoned with salt and pepper, then cook in deep, hot fat until brown on both sides.

Cabbage Salad.—Cut very fine one small head cabbage, one small can pimientos, one stalk celery, half cup English walnuts. Add three-fourths cup French or mayonnaise dressing. Serve on lettuce leaf.

Leftover Ham Timbales.—Put cup of milk and one cup bread crumbs into sauce and stir over the fire until smooth paste is formed. Add one cup chopped cooked ham, three tablespoonfuls butter, seasoning of salt and pepper and stiffly beaten whites of two eggs. Fill buttered molds two-thirds full of mixture, cover with buttered paper, put into a pan, half surrounded with hot water and bake in moderate oven until firm. Take out, garnish with parsley and hard-cooked eggs.

Carrot Pie.—One cup boiled or mashed carrots, one cup white sugar, one egg, one teaspoon salt, one teaspoon cinnamon, half teaspoon ginger, sweet milk enough to fill dish. This is very rich and cannot be told from pumpkin pie.

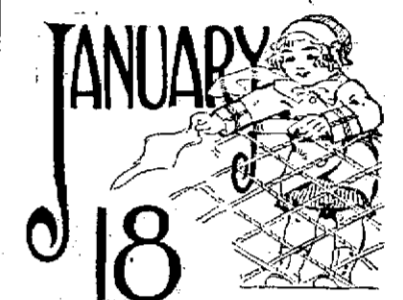

Portieres of Corn or Acorn.
The corn is soaked over night in warm water, then threaded on a good, coarse linen thread, putting the needle in at the outside end of kernel and bringing it out at the tip that grows next the cob. Thread as many grains as wanted then several glass beads, such as may be purchased for a few cents a bunch. The corn used may be of red, yellow and white, or all of one color, as desired. When a sufficient quantity has been strung, dilute varnish with turpentine until quite thin, dip the strings, let hang Sword in Heart of a Tree.

Embedded in the heart of a plank of wood taken from a railway station platform at Oakley, Fifeshire, Scotland, there has been found a sword measuring over two feet long. The plank had been in use for at least fifteen years. The weapon, which was of an old-fashioned type, a short cross-piece forming the handle, was in good preservation, and it is believed had been picked up by the tree at an early period of its existence and encircled with the growth.

CHIC FROCK OF LINEN OR SERGE

This chic frock is excellent for linen and equally good for serge. The waist is crossed over at the front and fastened with cord buttons, below this the material is cut away over a V-shaped inset of embroidery. The sleeves are of the new Bishop type with high fitted cuffs, having a circular section over the hand. The skirt has a short full tunic cut away at the front.

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY

A pleasant and successful journey is prophesied for you, but risks of money and games of chance are not favorable. If you are in employ you will have an opportunity to render some service which will be appreciated substantially.

Those born today will have talents of a high order in literary and scientific work. They will also be interested in affairs of state, and will be successful if allied with those who have practical ideas.

The Tipping Evil.

When Tooie, the famous actor, was playing an exceptionally fine engagement with a company in London, he said to the manager laughingly: "Oh, by the way, if my wife comes down next week don't say anything about the big receipts. You see, I've a lot of nephews and nieces, and they all expect tips from Uncle Johnnie. Last year they had over $400 from me, and my wife thinks I rather overdo it."

Poison in Absinthe.

The principal poison in absinthe is a vegetable substance known as thuyon. It is found in wormwood, which is used in making absinthe. France is the largest consumer of absinthe, taking more than all the rest of Europe. The consumption has been steadily increasing, so that in 1911 over 7,000,000 gallons of absinthe were used in France.

Wholesome Fig Recipes.

While we have realized in a general way the valuable properties of figs when ill, it has only been recently that we have discovered their value in keeping us well. The fig is the fruit of a small tree native of Asia, Europe and extreme western and southern parts of our own country. This fruit whether freshly plucked or dried is very nutritious and in parts of the orient is often used as a substitute for bread. It contains a large portion of grape sugar. Besides their use in dessert, figs are largely employed in cooking, candies, puddings, preserves and as they are reasonably cheap, wholesome and palatable, they should be frequently seen on the table. When a child desires candy, this sweet will satisfy and is much better for him.

PIMPLES ALMOST COVERED FACE

Blackheads Also. Suffered Greatly. Red and Irritated. Unsightly. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment and Face Was Cleared.

Atchison, Kan. — "For a number of years I suffered very freely from skin eruption. My face was very red and irritated, being almost covered with pimples and blackheads. They were a fine rash with the exception of a few large pimples on my forehead and chin. My face burned and looked red if exposed to either heat or cold. It was not only unsightly but very uncomfortable. I tried several remedies but couldn't get any relief. I was recommended to use Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. I applied the Cuticura Ointment in the evening, leaving it for about five minutes, then washing it off with Cuticura Soap and hot water. I washed with the Cuticura Soap and hot water also several times during the day. After about four months of this application, my face was cleared of the pimples. I still use the Cuticura Soap. I will be glad to recommend the Cuticura Remedies to anyone suffering from skin diseases." (Signed) Miss Elsie Nielson, Dec. 29, 1911.

IF TOMORROW IS YOUR BIRTHDAY.

Troubles and discord will worry you, and you will need a firm will and good judgment to manage your affairs. Changes seem unfavorable. If in employ, you will see an opportunity, unless you allow your attention to be distracted by useless thoughts.

Those born today will be of dreamy, speculative natures, and will have to be taught the practical things of life, particularly the care of their own appearance. This one thing, well learned when young, will save many of these children from the career of the unkempt and unappreciated ne'er-do-well, and make possible their success as able statesmen, or teachers.

C. F. Lester, 1017 Wheeler St., Janesville, Wis., says: "For several months I was in poor health and my system seemed to be filled with uric poison. My back ached intensely and I had but little strength or energy. I decided to try a good kidney medicine and as I had often heard Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of, I got a supply at the People's Drug Co., It did not take this remedy long to bring me entire relief. At that time I publicly told of my experience and during the years that have since passed, I have not changed my high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills. Whenever I use this remedy, it does good work."

MAY GIVE TO POLICE CONTROL OF DANCES

Public Dance Hall Ordinance Is Introduced in Madison City Council—Requires Licenses.

Strict regulation of public dances and the licensing and regulating of all public dance halls are embodied in the ordinance recently introduced in the Madison city council by Alderman J. H. Behrend, chairman of the police committee.

It is provided that it shall be unlawful to hold public dances or balls without first obtaining a license from the mayor, signed by him and the city clerk. Licenses expire July 1 of each year and copies must be posted in conspicuous places within the dance halls. The annual fee is to be $5.

No licenses are to be issued until it has been found that all halls have complied with the ordinance, health and fire regulations. Dance halls must be properly ventilated and supplied with sufficient toilet conveniences and be safe and proper.

Licenses shall be forfeited or revoked by the mayor for disorderly or immoral conduct or for the violation of any of the rules. No new permits can be granted for the same place for at least six months.

The ordinance gives the chief of police and captain of police power to vacate any dance hall whenever any provisions are being violated or whenever any indecent act shall be committed.

It also shall be unlawful after 10 p. m. to permit any person to attend or take part in any public dance who has not reached the age of 18 years, unless accompanied by a parent or guardian.

The mayor is to refer all applications for licenses to the chief of police for investigation. When desired the chief shall have the assistance of the health officer and fire chief. All public dances shall be discontinued and all public dance halls closed before 3 a. m.

The penalty for violating any of the provisions of the ordinance is a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $100.—Madison Democrat.

MUNICIPAL UTILITIES MADE A SUCCESS IN BRADFORD

In 1898, Bradford, England, began operating the first section of its municipal street railway, and today the undertaking is considered probably second to none in the country, having a capital expenditure of $4,674,840, an income of $1,411,285 per annum, and last year recorded little short of 5,000,000 car miles running while carrying 55,000,000 passengers. In 1898, the capital of the electrical undertaking was $778,640; today it is $4,039,195, while the number of units has increased in the same period from 15,500,000 to 22,000,000.

During the same period the gas works have been augmented by the acquisition of the plants of five district gas companies, and the income from the gas concern has increased by over $489,650. But as compared with 1898 the benefits of cheaper services must be added. The price of gas, which was 60.7 cents per thousand feet in 1909, is now 50.7 cents. The average price charged in 1898 for electricity was 7 cents per unit, while last year it was less than 3 cents. The fares upon the street railways have been practically reduced by half, in addition to securing a more efficient service.

WAUSAU WANTS LEGISLATURE TO CHANGE GOVERNMENT

The city of Wausau is to recommend to the state legislature some changes in the laws relating to the city government. The legislature will be asked to pass a bill authorizing the city to fix the number of aldermen to be elected so that the city can choose a supervisor and alderman from each ward, the supervisor to serve both on the county board and on the council. The wards may also be changed, a greater number being created, so that the city may have a more just representation on the county board. This is desired so that the council may get a better idea of taxation matters. The wards are at present unequally divided. To make a change it would be necessary to submit the question of establishing new wards to a vote at a general election and to later hold a special election for the election of officers, entailing considerable expense.

DISINFECT LIBRARY BOOKS FROM QUARANTINED HOMES

For some time all books from the public library at Montclair, N. J., which had been withdrawn by families where there were contagious diseases, such as scarlet fever and diphtheria, have been fumigated by the Board of Health. Recently, however, a new disinfecting cabinet was purchased and hereafter all books which are known or suspected to have been submitted to possible contact with infectious diseases will be thoroughly disinfected before being placed on the shelves for circulation. In this cabinet the books are placed on wire shelves in a galvanized iron oven which is kept at a temperature of 170 degrees for several minutes. It is believed that this is the first cabinet of its kind to be used by any library. All books which have been in the hands of patients suffering from either scarlet fever or diphtheria are immediately destroyed.—Municipal Journal.

MADISON TELEPHONE WIRES TO BE PLACED UNDERGROUND

Practically all of the overhead cables of the Wisconsin Telephone company in Madison will be removed and placed in underground conduits this year, according to Superintendent Mayers of the Telephone company.

The removal of the overhead wires along State street marks the start of an extensive campaign to increase the efficiency of the service of the company, he said.

Improvement work costing about $90,000 has been planned by the company. The work will be pushed following the completion of the State street work in April. The work which will be done includes the removal of overhead wires and cables in other parts of the city. It will be completed in September, says Mr. Mayer.

The preliminary estimate of the cost of the work was fixed at $76,800 by the engineers of the company, but this figure is low and the work when completed will cost in the neighborhood of $90,000, according to Mr. Mayer.—Madison State Journal.

MUNICIPAL REFERENCE BUREAU OF AID TO WISCONSIN CITIES

That 376 requests for assistance in solving municipal problems were received last year from public officials and citizens of 121 Wisconsin cities and towns, is shown in the report of Ford H. McGregor, head of the municipal reference bureau of the university extension division.

Commission form of government, street cleaning, paving, garbage collection, sewer cleaning, city accounts, and municipal markets, have been among the subjects upon which the largest number of requests have been received by the university Municipal Reference Bureau.

MAY PASS MILK ORDINANCE AT MADISON NEXT SPRING

Milk and cream sufficiently pasteurized will be permitted to be sold in Madison as the result of action taken by the council last night. Alderman Alfred, president of the board of health, stated that the adoption of the amendment gives the board of health the measure will not affect the university or farmers but that it will give the board control over the sale of milk shipped into Madison. He said that a new compact milk ordinance will be introduced in the spring.—Madison Democrat.

WILL GIVE NEW LISBON TRIAL FREE MAIL DELIVERY

New Lisbon will be one of a few small cities of the country in which the government will try the experiment of a letter carrier service, expected that in a few weeks time, mail will be delivered to all the homes, business places and hotels. P. O. Inspector W. Wisch was in that city a short time ago and, with Postmaster J. Strickland, laid out a route. A map of which has been drawn and sent of the Post-office Department for confirmation. The last congress appropriated $100,000 for free delivery service in cities below the second class, and New Lisbon is fortunate in getting in on the first proposition.

BREAKWATER AT FOND DU LAC TO RECEIVE NEEDED REPAIRS

Repairing the breakwater at Lakeside park, and extending it west so that there will be 800 feet of it guarding the park will be commenced soon, according to H. R. Potter, president of the park board. The present breakwater has been damaged somewhat by the storms and ice, and along with repairing of this it will be extended out into the lake 10 feet. The addition will be placed at the bottom of the present vertical structure. When completed, the breakwater will be somewhat in the shape of a small oblong.—Commonwealth.

DECATUR PUBLIC MARKET PROVES A BIG FAILURE

Decatur, Ill.—After fifteen months' trial, the public market here has proved a failure, according to Mayor Dineen, and probably will be abolished. The market was established in response to a cry of producers that their products was rotting because the stores would not buy it. Farmers and hucksters in the public market have charged prices as high as or higher than those asked in the stores and in addition have not delivered goods at homes.

City Clerk Purchasing Agent at Madison

SIEWALK KETCHES

THE FINISHING SCHOOL.
(By Howard L. Rann.)

THE finishing school is an expensive institution where tall, rawboned girls are sandpapered down until they can be sheathed with culture in the form of the French classics, the high handshake, the Richmond, Virginia, accent, and two Chopin études, a few which they are allowed to return home and spring a dizzying relay of tube gowns.

All of our best finishing schools are located in the far east, where people have plenty of time to read Balzac and learn the turkey trot.

They are always presided over by some stern spinster who has accumulated more culture than coin and who teaches the girls how to make salad dressing and divinity fudge, which they carry home with them and inflict upon their parents. After a girl has graduated from the domestic science department of a finishing school she can earn out every thing in the line of food except ham and eggs, boiled potatoes and salt-rising bread.

When the parents of an uneasy daughter discover that she is not likely to graduate from the eighth grade unless her father can get elected to the school board, she is sent to a tide-water finishing school and doped with the dead languages and other stimulants. She is taught the proper use of a name ring, how to eat grapefruit without wearing smoked glasses, and the art of modulating the voice so that she cannot be heard in the next block. She is also taught the difference between Schumann-Heink and Shakespeare and otherwise toned up.

Life at a finishing school is very thrilling. Once in two weeks the girls are escorted in low-spirited squads to some decorous theater by a chaperon whose views of the male sex border closely on murder. Every once in a while the girls are allowed to dance with each other which is one of the most exhilarating pastimes ever invented and makes all concerned happy and gay. By way of diversion the girls who have paid their tuition in advance are sometimes permitted to experiment with the Welsh rarebit, after which they are given free medical treatment. The upper class girls are occasionally allowed to entertain a brother in the front parlor, surrounded by the entire faculty, provided that the brother brings a certified copy of his handwriting, his railroad ticket and a letter of introduction from the Methodist minister.

VOICE OF THE PEOPLE.

Janesville, Wis., Jan. 18, 1913.

To the Gazette:
I read a communication in the Gazette last evening stating that the committee in charge of the recall movement had violated the corrupt practice act, by failing to report expenses incurred within two weeks. And under this act was liable to both fine and imprisonment. Now, don't your correspondent know that you cannot punish a man for a crime until that crime has been committed?

The recall petition has not been filed yet, and cannot become a political matter until it has been filed. Your correspondent does not seem to be very well informed in regard to the corrupt practice law. He had better call on the city attorney and get the necessary information.

Yours truly,
P. V. VESS.

NEW SUGAR CONTRACT READY FOR GROWERS

Rock County Sugar Company Plans For Coming Growing Season Made Public.

There has been some agitation among beet growers this season with a view to securing for 1913 a flat rate contract upon which to grow sugar beets.

The Rock County Sugar company has always contended that a plan of settlement on the basis of test was more fair to the grower and to the factory, as it is the sugar which is the valuable product of the beets and therefore the product which the company desires to buy, and the higher the development of sugar in the beet the more valuable to the company. The idea of a high development of sugar is stimulated in the mind of the grower where a premium is placed on high sugar content.

The company is just now paying off the premium for sugar percent running above 15 percent and the amount runs up to many thousands of dollars. However, with a view to meet the desires of their growers in so far as possible they have decided to put out a flat rate contract for 1913 on the basis of all beets being delivered at the factory, none of the growers being required by the company to hold any part of their crop longer than December 20th.

The prices to be paid are $7.75 for September and October, $6.00 for November and $6.25 for December. The freight to be paid by the grower not to exceed the freight to any other sugar company from the same station.

In view of the attitude of the new Congress on Tariff Legislation, as published Jan. 16th which threatens to decrease, if not wholly remove the present protective tariff on raw sugar, the most favorable contract being put out by the local company cannot fail to meet with the hearty approval of all beet growers' organizations and the growers in general.

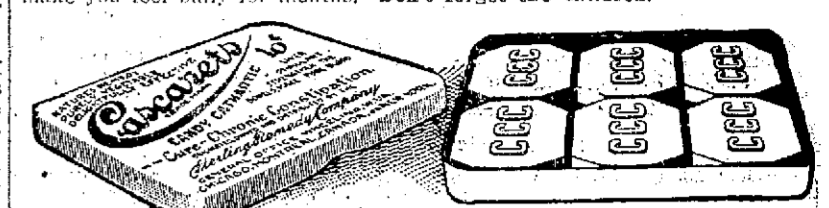

The agricultural force will probably be among the growers with the new contract early in the coming week and as the company does not desire a long run this coming season, it is anticipated that a sufficient number of acres will be contracted by February 15th.

Farmer Can Telephone in Order to

Quick Deliveries of Goods.
(By Ellis B. Usher.)

Milwaukee, Jan. 18.—The Postmaster General asked all first and second class postoffices to keep track of the new parcels post business for the first fifteen days of January, and we will soon hear from him that it is a great success. It is not without room for improvement but the people are using it. New Year's Day and two Sundays subtract three, so there were partially twelve full days to report on. The Milwaukee office sent out 56,102 packages, with an average weight of 17 ounces each, and there were 23,442 packages, the average weight of which was 9 ounces, showing that Milwaukee is a large shipping point.

The most important thing in favor of the parcels post, as pointed out by Postmaster D. C. Owen, of this city, is that the delivery on rural mail routes is much more convenient for the farmer than any other system. If, for example, a package is sent from Milwaukee to a farmer on any rural route in the country, by freight or express, it goes to the nearest railroad point, when the agent who receives it, as a rule, mails the addressee notice of its arrival. The farmer must then go or send for it. Under the parcels post system the package will be delivered by the rural mail carrier, the day it is received, and it will make anywhere from 24 hours, to days, difference, to the farmer, and save him the trouble of going to town if it is an important package.

One of the things that has worried a lot of people is the mail order house, of the big city. Under the parcels post every enterprising local merchant will have the best of the mail order house, because he not only has a lower rate, but every farmer on his nearby rural routes is connected by telephone and he can beat the mail order man coming and going. What he needs is capital enough to handle his business and sense enough to sell what his customers want, and he will have a better chance than before and his customers will get better service.

In Milwaukee the post office already has five wagons in commission delivering parcels exclusively, and carriers take a lot of the lighter ones. What is worrying the officials is how they will handle the business if the tradesman begin to dump a lot of their local deliveries on them. If they do, it will probably be those farthest out and least profitable. But the chance is certainly open at present.

The thing is not all one-sided and it will take time to demonstrate its strength and weaknesses. So far it looks as if the big advantage to the public is in the short haul business. This hits the railroads, as well as the express companies, as it is their fat business. But as far as the express companies go, it looks as if they might balance up on their short haul trade by carrying packages beyond the parcels post weight. I was told, for example, by a man who gets his eggs from Waukesha, that he could get a 30 dozen package at a rate by express, below what an 11 pound package would cost by mail.

Postmaster General Hitchcock is so exuberant that he talks about the taking over of the express business by the government. That, of course, would mean, if done at once, that the business usually is the people must pay the difference in taxes. If there is any way to do government business profitably, it will not last. Enthusiastic officials and congressmen will extend it into new fields that will eat up the profits and turn them into deficits. If we should get the express business, and the telegraph and telephone business, added on the post office department, as Mr. Hitchcock would have them, it will be only a step farther to Mr. Bryan's state ownership of railroads, and when that is reached there'll be no more private producers, who will not be in government employ. The question may then arise: "Who'll pay the taxes, to support the government employees?"

It is not surprising, perhaps, that the statement in last week's letter that a possible reason for an increase in the cost of loans to municipalities is that the security is being impaired, should meet with objection. The Wausau Record-Herald pays me the compliment of making it the subject of an editorial and says:

"Certainly there is nothing in the recent history of municipal loans to warrant the belief that municipalities are less able than formerly to meet their obligations. On the contrary, with the limitations on the amount of indebtedness which cities may assume—limitation which seems to be quite generally fixed at, or near, five per cent of the assessed valuation of their property—municipal bonds ought to be, and probably are, as safe as state bonds, and, for all practical purposes, as safe as government bonds."

I have no pride in it but I predicted more than ten years ago, that legislation tending to invite increasing municipal ownership, would result in enlarged municipal activities, and that the increase of assessments would furnish the opportunity, that the rate would go down and it has not except in a very few instances, hardly numerous enough to prove the rule, and these are more than offset by the rates that have been raised. It was also predicted that with the constitutional limit of indebtedness at 5 per cent, the raise of the assessment would increase the bonded debt of our municipalities. The fact is that, today, there are cities in Wisconsin that, ten years ago, were in fine financial condition, that are raising almost or quite twice as much money by direct taxation as they did then, and are up to their swollen bond limit beside, and are now increasing their indebtedness, by floating debt, or other methods quite as doubtful. Municipal loans ought to be had, always, at lower rates than corporate loans. They ought to offer the best security to be had. New England cities are borrowing at 4 per cent and less. Their bonds are exempt from taxation. When private individuals or corporations run their affairs in that way they go to smash. It may be wrong to say that municipalities will be measured by the same standards, but I am "from Missouri." They certainly were in Kansas, in the Populist season. Public extravagance is in the air and we will all help to pay for it. We can't eat our cake and keep it too.

Advertising the Erie.
The Erie Railroad Company has a lot of publicity agents and business agents who hunt the wide world over. In a recent number of the Erie Employee Magazine, which is published for the benefit of everybody on the Erie job, is an account, from Mr. Louis Jackson, the Erie's Industrial Commissioner, of some people and things he saw in a recent visit to Japan. "On the steamer coming back across the Pacific, I was introduced to Mr. C. Shiba of the Imperial Government Railways of Japan. On hearing I was connected with the Erie R. R., Mr. Shiba said: 'Erie railroad we all know it: I have just translated into Japanese the Erie book entitled, "Good Firing" and a copy has been handed to every locomotive engineer and fireman on our railways. We have it, "Fuel Economy, How They Save Coal on the Erie Railroad." Sorry I have not a copy with me.'"

That illustrates the all-pervasive. The publicity idea has soaked into days. It also illustrates, for the Japanese are very alert for the best of everything, the the Erie is at the front in all the practical rules of railroad-ing.

The publicity idea has soaked into Wall Street pretty well, when the Wall Street Journal publishes an editorial paragraph of this sort:

"Publicity dealt a hard blow to gambling with make goods. That publicity has in some degree tended to lessen speculation there can be no doubt. Some of the publicity was voluntary; but a considerable part of it has been forced upon corporations, particularly by the rules laid down by the Interstate Commerce Commission, which not only told the railroads what they should report, but now they should report it. A few years ago the roads made a very loud and bitter protest against the commission's rules for uniformity; but every reasonable investor, and most railroad managers, now concede that the change was desirable and wholesome."

When it is all measured up publicity has done more than new laws or commissions to correct abuses. If Judge Archibald could have been impeached, without having it become public, he would probably have had little punishment compared with the headlines and pictures of himself in the newspapers.

Short Notes.
Fiske O'Hara in the "Rose of Kildare" opens at the Davidson theatre tomorrow night, for four nights.
Mr. Wilson can add a couple more beads to his "13" string. He carried Wisconsin, which ranks as the 13th state in population, and he has the support of the Milwaukee Journal, and Lute Nieman's birthday comes on the 13th day of the month.

Speaker Hull has done the Assembly a service by making it plain that it is not obligatory on a statesman to have Charlie McCarthy direct his mind as to legislation and draw his bill for him, but he can't expect them to know all that Charlie does.

There's nothing doing at the park, the bleachers all are bare, the grandstand's empty, cold and dark, no fans are yelling there. Where are the lads, the gifted lads, who DARK DAYS, lately played the game, and the wreathed themselves with fame? Where are the men who brought distress to foes, and won the goal? Ah, some are writing for the press their dreary rignarole; which rignarole, all full of "I's" gives mankind clammy thrills; the baseball lads if they were wise, would throw away their quills. And some are doing monologues upon the weary stage; at tired in circus actors' togs, they earn their winter wage; their monologues are full of "I's" and also full of "me's"; and hearers say, with heart-felt sighs, that something smells of cheese. And some are wangling loud and long, with energy and fire; one says that O'her did him wrong, and O'her calls him lyre. And thus they solve they advertise, as busily as bees, with endless jags of big fat "I's" and wagonloads of "me's." Oh, I'll be glad when spring is here, for then the players all quit their capers strange and queer, and play the game of ball.

Foils A Foul Plot.

Old Fashioned Goodness in New Fashioned Buckwheat Flour.

The buckwheat cakes of your childhood days, how good they were! How joyfully you sat down to a great, heaping plate full of them on crisp winter mornings. But along in later years it seemed that you could not prevail upon the cook in your house to make these delicious cakes, because of the bother required in making them, the setting of the batter the night before and other attendant bothers. Now all this is changed. Have your cook get a package of "Old Times" Self-Rising Buckwheat Flour. All that is required with this new flour is to mix a little of the flour with milk and water and stir into a batter and then bake on a griddle. Salted to perfection. 10c a pound carton at your grocers.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, January 18, 1873.—The railroad committee of the board will meet at the common council room this evening at half past seven o'clock to consider the subject of the Evansville road. Interested citizens are invited to be present.

Flon. C. G. Williams and family returned from the east on Thursday. Mr. Williams goes to Madison on Monday to attend to court duties.

New doors have been placed at the head of the Court street church stairway. Which are objectionable only because they swing the wrong way. A panic and a rush of people would result disastrously as the doors are hung to open against the crowd.

A morsel of intelligence came to hand this morning which points towards an interesting breach of promise suit. The gentleman of the party is an aggrieved individual and thinks five thousand dollars will suffice to heal his wound, inflicted upon his heart. The papers were served yesterday upon the defendant, who is a widow a little past thirty years of age, prepossessing in appearance, and the owner of a considerable fortune left by her former husband who died some six years ago. The afflicted swain is also well to do in the world, though he has once ventured upon the rough sea of matrimony, he thinks he would like to embark again and with that desire uppermost in his mind, he sought the hand and fortune of the attractive widow. They first met in August and a mutual affection was quickly developed which was comforting to aspirations of the susceptible ones who had thus recklessly exposed themselves to the bow and arrow exercise in which the eyeless youngster is continually indulging. In September they were engaged and the wedding day was becoming upon which they longed to linger. But somehow stern fate interfered to prevent the consummation of their hopes. At any rate their marriage was postponed, for it was either late or a little mistake which the widow's wooer inadvertently committed. Busy preparations were made by the parties. The gentleman rented a house, furnished it, replenished his wardrobe and indulged in numberless little expenditures which he supposed would conduce to their mutual happiness, all to the amount of some eight hundred dollars. For fear he might die and leave her a widow he caused to be executed, an insurance policy on his life to the amount of $2500. Thus matters progressed. They were to be married on the second. The affair was postponed to the 12th, then to the 19th, then to the 22nd and finally she would not marry him at all. Certain reports had come to her ears and she felt she did not care to take the step under such circumstances. Hence the contemplated appeal to law on the part of the plaintiff. At the next term of the circuit court, this interesting suit will be probably tried and a jury of twelve honest men will decide how badly the young man has been injured by this sudden change in the future prospects of the once loving twain.

MOLLY McDONALD

A TALE OF THE FRONTIER

By RANDALL PARRISH
Author of "Keith of the Border," "My Lady of Doubt," "My Lady of the South," etc. etc.
Illustrations by J. L. Barnes

The troopers were no more fortunate in their results, but had succeeded in stirring up greater excitement during their exploration, several individuals, roughly aroused from sleep, exhibiting fighting propensities, which had cost one a blackened eye, and the other the loss of a tooth. Both, however, had enjoyed the occasion, and appeared anxious for more. Having exhausted the possibilities of the town, the soldiers procured lanterns, and leaving the horses behind, began exploring the prairie. In this labor they were assisted by the marshal, and a few aroused citizens hastily impressed into a posse. The search was a thorough one, but the ground nearby was so cut up by hoofs and wheels as to yield no definite results. Hamlin, obsessed with the belief that whatever had occurred had been engineered by Dupont, and recalling the fact that the man was once a ranchman somewhere to the southward, jumped to the conclusion that the fellow would naturally head in that direction, seeking familiar country in which to hide. With the two troopers he pushed on toward the river, choosing the upper ford as being the most likely choice of the fugitives. The trampled mud of the north bank exhibited fresh tracks, but none he could positively identify. However, a party on horseback had crossed within a few hours, and, with-out hesitation, he waded out into the stream.

The gray of dawn was in the sky as the three troopers, soaked to the waist, crept up the south bank and studied the trail. Behind them the yellow lanterns still bobbed about between the river and town, but there was already sufficient light to make visible the signs underfoot. Horsemen had climbed the bank, the hoof marks wet damp where water had drained from dripping fetlocks, and had instantly broken into a lops. A moment's glance proved this to Hamlin as he crept back and forth, scrutinizing each hoof mark intently.

"Five in the party," he said soberly. "Three mustangs and two American horses, cavalry shod. About three hours ahead of us." He straightened up, his glance peering into the gray mists. "I reckon it's likely our outfit, but we'll never catch them on foot. They'll be behind the sand-dunes before this. Before we go back, boys, we'll see if they left the trail where it turns west."

The three ran forward, paying little heed until they reached the edge of the ravine. Here the beaten trail swerved sharply to the right. Fifty feet beyond, the marks of horses' hoofs appeared on the sloping bank. Hamlin sprang down to where the marks disappeared around the edge of a large boulder. His hand on the stone, he stopped suddenly with quick indrawing of breath, staring down at a motionless figure lying almost at his feet. The man, roughly dressed, lay on his face, a bullet wound showing above one ear, the back of his neck caked with blood. The Sergeant, mastering his first sense of horror, turned him over and gazed upon the ghastly face of Major McDonald.

"My God, they've murdered him here!" he exclaimed. "Shot him down from behind. Look, men. No; stand back, and don't muss up the tracks. There are foot-prints here—Indians, by heaven! Three of them Indians!" "Some plainmen wear moccasins." "They don't walk that way—toes in; and see this hair in McDonald's fingers—that's Indian, sure. Here is where a horse fell, and slide down the bank. Isn't that a bit of broken feather caught in the bush, Carroll? Bring it over here."

The three bent over the object. "Well, what do you say? You men are both plainmen."

"Cheyenne," returned Carroll promptly. "But what the hell are they doing here?"

Hamlin shook his head. "It will require more than guessing to determine that," he said sternly.

those Indians came from, or how they happened to be up here, but I believe they belong to Black Kettle's band of Cheyennes. His bunch is down below the Canadian, is it not, sir?"

"Yes." "Dupont must be friendly with them, and this coup has been planned for some time. Last night was the chance they have been waiting for. The only mistake in their plans has been the early discovery because of Miss Molly's disappearance. They have gone away careless, expecting two or three days' start, and they will only have a few hours. We'll run them down, with good luck, before they cross the Canadian. You have no further instructions, sir?"

"No, nothing, Sergeant. You're an old hand, and know your business, and there is no better scout on the plains than Sam Wasson. Good-bye, and good luck."

CHAPTER XXIV.

In Pursuit.

The four men, heavily armed, and equipped for winter service, rode up the bank of the ravine to the irregularity of plain beyond. The trail, leading directly south into the solitude, was easily followed, and Wasson, slightly in advance of the others, made no attempt to check his horse, content to lean forward, his keen eyes marking every sign. Scarcely a word was exchanged, since Hamlin had explained what had occurred as they crossed the river. Hardly less interested than the Sergeant, the sober-faced scout concentrated every energy on the pursuit, both men realizing the necessity of haste. Not only would the trail be difficult after they attained the sand belt, but, if snow fell, would be utterly blotted out. And the dull, murky sky threatened snow, the sharp wind having already veered to the northwest. All about stretched a dull, dead picture of desolation, a dun-colored plain, unrelieved by vegetation, matching the skies above, extending in every direction through weary leagues of dismal loneliness. The searching eye caught no relief from desolate sameness, drear monotony. Nowhere was there movement, or any semblance of life. Behind, the land was broken by ravines, but in every other direction it stretched level to the horizon, except that far off southward arose irregular ridges of sand, barren, ugly blotches, colorless, and forever changing formation under the beating of a ceaseless wind. It was desert, across which not even a snake crawled, and no wing of migrating bird beat the leaden sky above.

The marks of their horses' hoofs cutting sharply into the soil, told accurately the fugitives' rate of progress, and the pursuers swept forward with caution, anxious to spare their mounts and to keep out of vision themselves until nightfall. Their success depended largely on surprise, and the confidence of those ahead that they were unpursued. Wasson expressed the situation exactly, as the four halted a moment at an unexpectedly discovered water-hole.

"I'd think this were plain trail was some Injun trick, boys, if I didn't know

"What do you imagine they will decide, Sam?"

"Well, that's all guesswork. But I reckon I know what I'd do if I was in their sort. To fix an' beat' chased for murder an' robbery. I'd take the easy way: make for the nearest Injun village, an' leave the girl there."

"You mean Black Kettle's camp?"

"I reckon; he's down there on the Canadian somewhere. You kin bet those fellows know what an' there's what they're aimin' for, unless this yere Dupont has some hidin' out scheme of his own. What did you say he ranched?"

"Buffalo Creek."

"That's the same neighborhood; must've been in cahoots with those red devils to have ever run cattle in that. We've got to head 'em off afore they get down into that knitty, or we won't have no scalps to go back home with. Let's mosey erlong, boys."

the reason for it. 'T ain't Injun nature, an' he's cock-sure that nobody's chasin' him yet. He's figurin' on two or three days' get-a-way, and so don't care a tinker's dam 'bout these yere marks. Once in the sand, an' that won't be no trail anyhow. It's some knitty out there, an' it would be like huntin' a needle in a haystack to try an' find them fellows after ter-night. This is my idea—we'll just mosey along slow, savin' the hosses an' keepin' back out o' sight till dark. Them fellows ain't many hours ahead, an' are likely ter camp first part of their night anyhow. They'll feel safe onct hid in them sand-hills, an' if they don't git no sight of us, most likely they won't even post no guard. That's when we want ter dig in the spurs. Ain't that about the right program, Sergeant?"

Burning with impatience as Hamlin was, fearful that every additional moment of delay might increase the girl's danger, he was yet soldier and plainsman enough to realize the wisdom of the old scout. There were at least four men in the party pursued, two of them Indian warriors, the two whites desperate characters. Without doubt they would put up a fierce fight, or, if warned in time, could easily scatter and disappear.

"Of course you are right, Sam," he replied promptly. "Only I am so afraid of what may happen to Miss Molly."

"Forget it. That's nuthin' goin' ter happen to her while the bunch is on the move. If that outfit was all Injun, or all white, maybe that might. But the way it is they'll never agree on nuthin' 'cept how to get away. 'T ain't likely they ever meant ter kill the Major, 'er take the girl erlong. Them things just naturally happened, an' now they're scared stiff. It'll take a day or two for 'em to make up their minds what to do."

"What do you imagine they will decide, Sam?"

"Well, that's all guesswork. But I reckon I know what I'd do if I was in their sort. To fix an' beat' chased for murder an' robbery. I'd take the easy way: make for the nearest Injun village, an' leave the girl there."

"You mean Black Kettle's camp?"

"I reckon; he's down there on the Canadian somewhere. You kin bet those fellows know what an' there's what they're aimin' for, unless this yere Dupont has some hidin' out scheme of his own. What did you say he ranched?"

"Buffalo Creek."

"That's the same neighborhood; must've been in cahoots with those red devils to have ever run cattle in that. We've got to head 'em off afore they get down into that knitty, or we won't have no scalps to go back home with. Let's mosey erlong, boys."

Worth While.

We may be sure, although we know not how, we give our lives like coral insects, to build up, invisibly, in the twilight of the seas of time, the reef of righteousness; and we may be sure, although we see not why, it is a thing worth doing.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

DINNER STORIES

Said a certain eminent actor, who at the age of fifty-nine looks no more than thirty-five: "I try to keep my hair and my stomach off—that is the true secret of perennial youth." Then he told me of his famous stories illustrative of the horrors of complacency. "A far man," he said, "could not help laughing one day at the ludicrous appearance of a very bow-legged chap—one of those arch-looking chaps, you know. Though a total stranger to him, the fat man slipped the bow-legged chap on the back and said: 'By jingo, brother, you look as if you'd been riding a barrel.' The bow-legged man smiled and poked his forefinger deep into the fat man's soft, loose stomach. 'And you look as if you'd swallowed one,' he said."

A Washington woman has in her employ as butler a colored man of a pompous and satisfied mien, who not long ago, permitted a damsel, long his ardent admirer, to become his spouse. One day when the mistress of the house had occasion temporarily to avail herself of the services of the butler's wife, it was observed that whenever the duties of the two brought them in conjunction the bride's eyes would shine with extraordinary emotion. "Your wife seems wonderfully attached to you, Thomas," casually observed the mistress of the house. "Yes, ma'am," answered Thomas, complacently. "Ain't it jest sickenin'?"

During the war in the Philippines General Charles King one day while resplendent in his uniform, which was made especially brilliant by several rows of new brass buttons, came up on a raw recruit. The latter was on post duty and failed to salute the general. "Are you on duty here?" asked General King with a show of anger. "I guess so, said the recruit. 'They sent me out here, anyway.' 'Do you remember your general orders?' asked the general. 'I guess I do—some of them,' said the raw recruit. 'Well,' said the general, 'don't you know that you are supposed to salute your officers? Don't you know I am the general of this brigade?' 'You the general,' said the new recruit. 'Gosh, no, I didn't know it. I thought you was the chief of the fire department.'"

Miss Rosy Nohall had just returned from a finishing school and had evidently fulfilled all that was required of her in the scholastic line.

She and her father were sitting in the dining-room.

"That air," remarked her relative.

"Father dear," interrupted Rosy, "it's vulgar to say 'that air,' you should say, 'that there,' or preferably just 'that.'"

"Well, this ear—" commenced her father; but he was cut off again.

"No father, smirked the dutiful daughter. 'That's just as vulgar. You must avoid such expression as 'this ear.'"

Father became irate.

CLERGYMAN WANTS "TO PUT THOSE WHO NEED HELP ON THE RIGHT TRACK"

Writes Letter in the Hope of Helping Sufferers From Colds to Cure Them as He Was Cured.

The following letter from a Phillipsport, N. Y., clergyman is of special interest. Rev. John Ernest Parker, in the hope of putting those who need help, on the right track to get it, as he says, tells his experience:

"For several winters I have used Father John's Medicine when suffering from a severe cold, and it has never failed to give the desired results. When living where 'Father John's' is not procurable, I have tried other so-called remedies, but relief did not come and we have sent quite a distance for this 'friend of humanity' which I am glad to testify has never failed when put to the test. This letter is given without solicitation, but with the hope that it may be the means of putting someone who needs the help I have received on the right track to get it. (Signed) John Ernest Parker, pastor, M. E. church, Phillipsport, N. Y.

Side Lights On The Circus Business

By
D. W. WATT

Copyrighted.

In eighteen and fifty, one August Ringling, father of the now famous Ringling Brothers, was married and with his wife started for Chicago, Ill., to make a home, and it was here that Al Ringling, the oldest of the brothers first saw the light of day.

After living there in Chicago for about two years Mr. Ringling thought best that they move to Milwaukee.

He was a harness maker by trade and had better inducements offered him to the Cream City. Here the second son, Gus Ringling, was born and after a residence of less than two years in Milwaukee they moved to Baraboo and after residing there a few years they moved to McGregor, Ia., where August Ringling went into business for himself.

They resided there fourteen years and it was there that most of the family was raised and educated in the public schools. There were nine children in the family, seven boys and two girls. But Baraboo had always seemed like home to the Ringlings and along in about the middle of the seventies they moved back to Baraboo, in which city they have since made their home.

It was about this time that the circus bug commenced to buzz in the head of Al Ringling, the oldest of the boys and it soon spread to the rest of the family like a case of scarlet fever. It was early in the year of '78 or '79 that they first attempted to put a show on the road, which was a small hall attraction and the Ringling Brothers were the principle actors.

In the early part of their hall show business they were like most of the amateurs in the business, they saw more or less up and down, but it was only about three years later, I think in '81 that they got a few horses together and half as many wagons and in the spring started out the real circus. But the wagon show unlike the hall show commenced to prosper from the start and it was only a few years until it was a show of no mean proportions and stood well in favor with the public in all parts of the country where they happened to show. As soon as the little wagon show would close in the fall the boys would busy themselves repairing and rebuilding the wagons and cages for the coming season, always adding a few new ones and the father with three or four assistants would rebuild the old harnesses and also add many new ones for the coming spring.

It was in this way that year after year the little wagon show of the Ringling Brothers prospered until the fall of '90 after running into winter quarters at their home in Baraboo, the brothers held a meeting and decided that they were big enough to put the show on rail.

Cars were bought for their new venture and along about the last of April they opened up the season with a brand new railroad show of sixteen cars. This for them was quite a venture at the time, but the new show prospered and made more than double the money the first year by rail than they had ever made by wagons.

The cars took them farther from home, they opened up new country and everywhere that the new railroad show of Ringling Brothers pitched their tent they made friends, for their watchword had always been to make good to the public every promise that they had made on paper.

It was only the next year that the show nearly doubled in size and a better and higher class ring performance always follows in the growth of a circus and the addition of animals of all kinds in the menagerie.

It was before this time that the older show men of the country commenced to watch their movements and could readily see that they would soon have a dangerous rival for supremacy in the field of show business. Adam Forepaugh, for whom I worked for many years, was always a great admirer of the Ringlings and many times I have heard him say, "Those boys will be great men in the business some day." This was at the time when they were on wagons and in a small way.

At one time they were showing in Titusville, Pa. They got in there

Sunday morning and were to show Monday and the Forepaugh show got into the Oil City at the same time and as the two towns were only eighteen miles apart, Adam Forepaugh, Jr., and myself with two other friends drove across the country Sunday to take a look at the Ringling show.

Their lot in Titusville was located on a bank of the river which gave them ample opportunity to wash all the wagons and cages and as I had notified them a few days before that they would have visitors there on Sunday, everything was in the finest shape possible to entertain callers. On our ride back to Oil City that evening young Forepaugh said to me, "There is the finest and best managed show for the size of it that I ever saw."

The Ringling brothers ran their show clean. There were no petty thievery or short change artists allowed around the circus when it was small and when it grew to such proportions that they were unable to look after that part of it themselves they employed a Pinkerton man who well knew how to look after that part of the show.

About six years ago I went to Madison to see the circus. They had showed the day before in Milwaukee and on account of the long haul from the lot in Milwaukee to the railroad yards there and the long haul from the Madison yards to the lot in Madison it made the show late in getting out to parade.

I walked onto the lot about 10 o'clock and everybody was hustling, doing all they could to get the parade started. The carriage was in front that led the parade and Al Ringling led it. "Dave, you know Madison as well as anybody, jump in that carriage and start the parade. We'll put the wagons in line as fast as we can. Don't stop. Keep everything going."

At that time most of the Ringling boys made their homes in Baraboo and while August Ringling, the father, had died in '88, the mother was still living and was in Madison at the show that day. They all had a family dinner together in the cook tent at which I was an invited guest and was given the seat of honor next to Mother Ringling.

Mrs. Ringling wore a smile of satisfaction that day when she was talking over matters at home in Baraboo and the sons were asking after the neighbors and at the dinner table there was little or nothing mentioned about the show. Everything that day seemed to please Mother Ringling, and why not? She had lived to see the life's ambitions of her sons realized—that of owning and managing the greatest show in the world—and it was certainly realized that day in Madison.

It is certain to say that the cheery advice and bright smiles of the mother had much to do to smooth the pathway of the boys in their career in the business. Both the afternoon and night houses were packed to the ring bank and this was the best evidence in the world of the confidence that the people had in the Ringling show.

This was the last visit that I ever had with Mrs. Ringling, for she died at her home in Baraboo the following January and was buried in the family lot in the cemetery there, where the father and two of the boys and one sister are also buried. The one sister living, Mrs. Harry North, resides in Baraboo, but the brothers are all scattered now, their interests in the show business calling them to different parts of the country.

Al Ringling, the oldest, lives in a beautiful home in Baraboo. Henry, the youngest of the boys, makes his home in Wilmette, a suburb of Chicago. Charles Ringling and his family reside in New Rochelle, New York, near the winter quarters of the great Barnum show. He also owns a beautiful winter home in Sarasota, Florida. John Ringling for the most part makes his home in New York City and White Sulphur Springs, Montana, where he owns a fine ranch and is president of a railroad running from a nearby town.

But it was earlier in their careers when the Ringlings were young in the business that the owners of the powerful shows of former years commenced to pass away and the Ringlings began to reach out for control of those powerful shows. The first of these was the W. V. Cole show which Mr. Cole sold to the Barnum show and took as part payment an interest in the Barnum show, where he was given the management of the show for some years.

Later Mr. Cole sold out his interest and retired from the business and is still living in New York City. Then came the death of Adam Forepaugh and that show passed into the hands of the Barnum people—James A. Bailey and James E. Cooper. Then came the deaths of the Sells brothers, whose homes and winter quarters were in Columbus, Ohio. That show was sold at auction in the winter and the Ringlings and James A. Bailey were the buyers.

Later they bought the Forepaugh show of Mr. Bailey, which gave them control of all the larger shows except the Barnum show, and that they soon took over after the death of James A. Bailey, so that now they owned and controlled all those once famous shows and they finally divided them up as two enormous institutions—the Ringling and the Barnum shows.

The Ringling show, which is wintered at Baraboo, will open the season about the first week in April, and the Barnum show at Bridgeport, Conn., will open at Madison Square Garden in New York about the first week in March, the exact dates not being settled as yet.

I spent last Tuesday in Baraboo with Al Ringling, where he gave me the outlines of the great Ringling show for the coming season. This show will take the road with about ninety cars, all being sixty feet or over in length, with seventeen or eighteen sleepers. These cars will run in four sections and carry nearly, if not quite, 1,400 people.

The beautiful production of Joan of Arc, which they gave last summer, will be one of the features this year, but put on in a much grander scale. There will be 800 people in this production and there will be three shifts of scenery in the play. The finest scenic artists in the country are now at work on the scenery.

A German professor is busy working on the music which will be used in this production, and the wardrobe alone for these 800 people will cost something of a fortune, running into many thousands of dollars.

After he had given me a brief outline of where the show was to be this year the only wonder to me was how could it make money enough to even pay the expenses. It would not be possible for any other circus and menagerie in the world to take money enough to pay expenses.

If any show managers the world over have hewed close to the line of the golden rule, the Ringling brothers certainly have and any success that may come to them will be certainly well deserved.

After the close of the engagement in Chicago the Ringling show will start east and the Barnum show at the close of their engagement in Madison Square Garden will start directly for the west. Mr. Al Ringling assured me that one or the other of the great shows would certainly visit Janesville this year. May they prosper to the end of their lives' work.

Confederate Lover Was Very Devoted To His Sweetheart

One of the most interesting letters of the Civil war published in the Janesville Daily Gazette during war times, is one which appeared in the issue of January 12, 1864, written from the South by A. H. Stillwell, a member of Company A of the Fifth Wisconsin Regiment. In it Mr. Stillwell enclosed a copy of a letter found in one of the rebel camps when the confederates evacuated hastily, fleeing before the union forces. The letter was written by a confederate soldier to his sweetheart in Georgia. The people of the South are generally conceded to be emotional, and this man, judging from the billet-doux, was as ardent a lover as ever wooed a Southern maiden.

Brandy Station, Va., Jan. 5, '64.
Messrs. Editors: The following is a correct copy of the contents of a rebel love letter, found by a member of the Fifth Wisconsin Regiment on our late movement across the Rapidan. It was found in a tent, (among the camps just hastily evacuated by the rebels, at the appearance of our troops), ready sealed and addressed to Miss Polly Raymond, Milledgeville, Ga. It has never been sent to any other paper, and thinking perhaps it might be a curiosity, I concluded to send it to you, for publication, if you saw fit.

Yours etc.

My Dear Darling Polly:—I have been thinking dear Polly, as I was just reading your sweet little epistle, of the happy happy hours I've passed away in your blessed presence dear Polly, before this unholy war waged for our subjugation by the north, had called your patriotic lover to the tented fields to protect your home, and your affairs my dear, from the ravages of the ruthless, invading yankees. Oh my darling pet, Pol, I can never half express, nor pen cannot depict upon paper, the deep and burning love I feel for you my dear, as I sit by my lonely campfire, and meditate on your loveliness, dear pet, and harbor for an instant, the heart-rending thought, that possibly at this precious moment, my darling, some roving band of dastardly yankees, may be driving your angelic form, from the peaceful and happy fireside, to suffer a wanderer, at the mercy of these cowardly yankees. Ah but I know this is all a wild chimeric of the brain, darling, and I will at once dismiss it from my fond and anxious mind. I know you are ever true to me, my precious angel, and your fair form of angelic loveliness, is ever fitting before my vision, in my dreams love, I dream of you by night, pet—darling, and while I am on my lonely couch by day, I think only of you, my loving cherub, and long for thy holy presence to smooth my ruffled brow; and as I pace my lonely beat I am hoping, ever hoping, to return to your arms once more, and clasp your tender form to my happy embrace. Oh, I am happy in your love, my precious jewel, how long, oh how long, this murderous suspense, would that I could rest my aching head upon your bosom, as of old. May the time soon come when we can join hands, in the holy bonds of wedlock, my precious treasure, then, when the hated Lincoln government sees fit to let us alone, and acknowledge our independence, we will settle down in sober, quiet life, my dear, far away from the din of battle, and enjoy each other's pleasures forever. Your last photograph looks very pretty, and just like you, pet pol, I haven't time to write any more today pretty; but will write you a long letter tomorrow. Do write often my dear, and direct as before to Company B 15th, Georgia, Orange, C. H. Yours until death,

SAM'L DAGGOT.

Occupations of Women.
Statistics show that women are engaged in every occupation in the United States necessary for house-building. There are women plumbers, gasfitters and even boiler-makers. In the lumber regions it is said that women do all sorts of work, refitting and even chopping the wood.

It suited my case as though made just for me." For dyspepsia, indigestion, jaundice, and to rid the system of kidney poisons that cause rheumatism, Electric Bitters have no equal. Try them.
